Writing from England in reference to shipments of Alberta butter to that market the past season, one prominent broker states as follows: "We have had several good sized shipments from Alberta creameries over this route (The Panama) this year and are pleased to say that in every case we have had entire satisfaction with this butter. ALL-STAR CAST FOR ZANE GREY'S "BORDER LEGION"

New Paramount Picture to be Feature at the Empress

Headed by Antonio Moreno and Helene Chadwick in featured roles, a remarkably strong cast has been assembled in the new Zane Grey Paramount production, "The Border Legion," to be shown at the Empress Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

Moreno has a different sort of role as Jim Cleve, a gay, young, irresponsible cowboy. Mack Chadwick's role is that of a typical daughter of the West—young, beautiful, unafraid.

In the principal supporting roles are Rockliffe Fellowes, leader of "The Border Legion"; Gibson Gowland, his lieutenant; Charles Ogle, a cattlemen who is the target for the maraudings of the Legion; James Corey, Edward Gribbon and Luke Cosgrave.

"The Border Legion" was a band of outlaws who rode the Southern border of Idaho in the early days of the West, spreading death and terror. According to Zane Grey, this is a true story. It is clean, wholesome and typically American, chock-full of action, appeal, drama and love. William Howard did the direction, and George Hull wrote the screen play.

The entire production was made in the wild and little-known mountains of the Northwest with the marvelous natural scenery as background.

"Border Legion" is the 'Western' of the season!

CONSTANCE TALMADGE IN NEW COMEDY ROLE

Constance Talmadge's admirers will whoop with joy when they see her in "The Goldfish," a First National picture which will be shown at the Empress Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next.

Constance has definitely deserted the field of costume drama and has resumed her activities as a comedienne. And her come-back is made in a comedy which is a side-splitter.

Because of her apparent low station in life, Suzanne cannot accept

Over a hundred Indian delegates, representing every tribe of the Blackfeet on the American continent, attended the first Convention of Blackfeet Indians, held in the Town Hall, Macleod, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The Bloods, North Peigans, South Peigans, and Blackfoot Reserves sent a number of delegates accompanied by their Chiefs and Minor Chiefs, to take part in discussion of their tribal interests, and especially with the object of obtaining greater scope in the administration of their property affairs—dealing particularly with the regulations now in force regarding the leasing of Indian lands, which, by order-in-council passed some two years since, vests full power in the Indian Department to lease such lands without consulting the Indians on the various reservations, and thus contravening the Blackfoot Treaty of 1877. It was by no means a meeting of feathered and painted savages gathering together to discuss the details of an imminent marauding excursion, but a convocation of sober minded men and women seeking to further their welfare by concerted action.

The meeting was opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of Wednesday and R. J. Hamilton, of the North Peigans, Montana, an highly educated Indian, and one who holds the position of Commissioner on his Reserve, was appointed chairman; and Mike Mountain Horse, of the Blood Agency, Macleod, filled the position of secretary.

The delegates were welcomed by Mayor McDonald, President Farnett of the Board of Trade, and other Town officials, and after the opening speeches had been concluded the Indians at once proceeded to business, and discussed adverse conditions on their different reservations.

W. H. Shield, M.L.A., of Macleod, addressed the convention, stating his willingness to aid them in advancing their welfare, but stating that as Mr. Coote the Federal member, would be in attendance Thursday morning perhaps it would be advisable to postpone important discussion until then.

Only one resolution was brought forward and introduced by Joe Calf Child, Head Chief of the Blackfeet, and which was thrown out by the Convention after a short discussion. The resolution read as follows: "That only one form of marriage amongst Indians be recognized and made law (and included in the Indian Act) as asked for and recognized by the Christian Churches and Government."—On vote the motion was defeated.

A number of old Chiefs who were present at the signing of the Blackfeet Treaty in 1877, complained of the injustice done by the deduction of seven dollars by the government from the twelve dollars promised them every year, "As long as the rivers flow, and as long as the sun rises and sets."

A number of complaints were made against existing regulations on the reserves; also the Indian agents and other government officials were criticised regarding dealing with the Indians according to the existing regulations as to the disposition of grain, cattle, leases and monies.

rected by Jerome Storm, Constance has three husbands, roles played by Jack Mulhall, Jean Hersholt and William Conklin. Two of the husbands are divorced, that is to say they are handed the fatal bowl of goldfish which gives them their congeals, and the third is a happily married man. Just as Constance is about to marry her fourth husband, the Duke of Middlesex, a series of events occur which throw her back into the arms of her first husband and all ends happily.

The Goldfish was adapted by C. Gardner Sullivan from Gladys Unger's story, and is a highly Marjorie Rameau was featured.

Jack Mulhall is Constance's leading man. Others having prominent roles in the cast are Jean Hersholt, Za Su Pitts, Edward Connelly, William Conklin, Nellie By Baker, Leo White and Frank Elliott.

MABEL NORMAND IN BEWITCHING COMEDY

Has Star Part in New Sennett Feature, "Suzanna," Beautifully Romantic

An appeal to the lover of the artistic and picturesque is Mack Sennett's "Suzanna," starring Mabel Normand, an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release, coming to the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday.

Against a background historic and romantic, "Suzanna" faithfully depicts the charm, romantic and fruitfulness of California about 1835. To the most minute details of the period from Tu Tanek down to 1924 Tiffany, jeweled dog-collar bracelets and a bandeau of powdered diamonds over silver, all are included in Constance's gorgeous "Goldfish" costume.

"The Goldfish," adapted from the stage play by C. Gardner Sullivan, was directed by Jerome Storm. Featuring the supporting cast is Jack Mulhall. Others having prominent roles are Jean Hersholt, Za Su Pitts, Edward Connelly and William Conklin.

ZANE GREY STORY PARAMOUNT FILM

Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick in "The Border Legion"

The Zane Grey Paramount picture, "The Border Legion," featuring Antonio Moreno and Helene Chadwick in the principal roles, will be shown next Monday and Tuesday at the Empress.

The story deals with the love affair

At the conclusion of the evening session A. F. Grady, secretary of the Board of Trade, was called forward and honored by being made honorary chief of the Blackfeet Nation. The installation was made by Mountain Horse, of the Bloods. The honorary chieftain was given the old tribal name of Pah-ka-po-to-kan—in English: Chief Lazy Head.

By a unanimous vote it was decided to hold the next annual convention at Macleod next summer, when it is expected every member of the Blackfeet Tribe who can possibly come will be in attendance and the affair will be in the nature of a celebration and carnival of all Western Indians. This promises to be the largest meeting of Indians ever held on the continent. The Macleod Board of Trade entertained the delegates to a banquet in the evening which was greatly enjoyed.

The following head chiefs were in attendance, each one accompanied by his minor chiefs and other delegates; Chief Hamilton of the Peigans, (Montana); Chief Joe Calf Child, of the Blackfeet; Shot Both Side, Chief of the Bloods; and Minor Chief Johnny Crow Eagle of the North Peigans.

The Convention continued on Thursday morning, with more complaints being registered by the Indians against the existing conditions. Mr. Coote, the Federal member for Macleod constituency, was present and made a statement to Chairman Hamilton he informed the meeting that if the Indians in a regularly voted on resolution asked for a government investigation of their affairs he would promise them that he would bring the matter up for discussion on the floor of the House at the next session of the legislature.

W. H. Shield, M.L.A., of the provincial house was again present on the platform.

At the conclusion of the Blackfeet Indian convention on Thursday evening, in the matter of the leasing of Indian lands Mr. Coote, M.P. for the Macleod Federal Riding, convinced the convention that according to the Indian Act, Section 90a, the government had authority to lease their lands even though contrary to the wishes of the Indians.

The Convention then moved a resolution that the government at the next sittings of the legislature be asked to repeal clause 90a of the Indian Act, and give the Indians the right to have the controlling voice as to the leasing or disposing of any portion of their reservations.

The Blackfeet Convention at Macleod was the first Indian Convention ever held in Western Canada.

R. B. Bennett, K.C., of Calgary was in Macleod this week attending the district court.

Fades the glory of sunset light In ruby and gold and malachite, Then rest, my baby, rest.

Darker, softer the shadows grow; Hark to the sleep call, soft and low, Sounding across the night; Silver stars are hung in the sky, And a silver moon is riding high Like a ship with sails of white.

ENTERTAINERS THAT REALLY ENTERTAIN

Harold Nelson Shaw and Frank Hopkinson, celebrated Canadian artists, will present a splendid concert in the Town Hall, Macleod, on Wednesday, November 19th, 1931.

Mr. Shaw is not only unsurpassed in Canada as a reciter and entertainer, but many of his pupils from his large studios in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, have become noted figures on the platform, screen and stage. He brings a most varied programme of thrilling dramatic sketches, vivid scenes from great dramas and comic impersonations. His rib-tickling negro sketches and impersonations of gossip old ladies are irresistibly funny, and his sketch of a spiritualistic seance, always draws gasps of laughter from the audience. The Chronicle, Rotorua, New Zealand, said: "His faculty for humorous delineations was brilliantly shown in two exquisitely comical sketches. In these, Mr. Shaw's power of facial expression and command of different dialects were striking."

Frank Hopkinson is a young Canadian tenor whose magnificent voice and personal charm have already won for him a high place in the musical world. His versatility is shown by his extraordinary repertoire of Italian arias, oratorio selections, concert ballads and lyrics, folk and character songs. While in New Zealand, he obtained a charming Maori Dance Song called "Waiaia Poi." Its weird and novel melody makes it a great favorite, and he includes it on every programme. He renders his dramatic songs with fire and intensity, while a liquid loveliness pervades his concert lyrics. In his character songs, he loses himself one moment in the dreamy mood of the negro in his delightful "Lazy Song," and in the next awakens the gay picture of the Poi dancer tossing her balls in the joyous abandon of the dance.

If you want to hear a concert that brings to you in one evening the delights of an entrancing picture-show, the greatest scenes from the stirring dramas of the stage, visions of grand opera, beautiful concert lyrics, interwoven with a thread of irresistible comedy, do not miss hearing these artists at the Town Hall, Macleod, on Wednesday, November 19th, 1931.

The concert is under the auspices of The Macleod Agricultural Society.

AMERICAN LAWYERS' VISITED ENGLAND

One of the most notable events of the year in Great Britain has been the visit of the American Bar Association, the members of which were royally entertained by their brethren of the legal profession in the old country assisted by a number of Canadian lawyers. Included in the delegation from Canada was Dr. C. P. Conybeare, K.C., of Lethbridge, who will give a lecture on the subject in the Parish Hall, Macleod, on Monday evening, November 17th.

CONSTANCE DOLLS UP LIKE AN XMAS TREE

Constance appeared in all the available jewels, rings, bracelets, necklaces, diamond buckles and anklets that Clare West, noted costume designer, could find for her in Los Angeles.

TEACHERS OF MACLEOD INSPECTORATE IN CONVENTION AT BLAIRMORE

Blairmore, Nov. 7.—The annual convention of the teachers of Macleod inspectorate was held at the Union church, Blairmore, Nov. 7th.

There were about eighty teachers registered. The chair was occupied by Mr. G. Stevenson, president of the convention.

Following the invocation by Rev. W. T. Young, was an address of welcome by Mr. Gillis as representative of the mayor of Blairmore.

Mr. Dutil, chairman of the school board, also addressed the assembly.

The president, Mr. G. Stevenson, of Pincher Creek, gave an excellent and most valuable talk on the vital points in connection with the work of a teacher. This was heartily applauded.

Language Work

A paper on "Language Work in Grade 7" was composed and read by Miss B. E. Douglas, Blairmore. Discussions on this paper were led by Miss O. Macleod, Coleman, and Inspector Morgan. (Mention was also made in appreciation of the president's address.)

Alberta Teachers' Alliance business was discussed by their secretary-treasurer, J. W. Barrett, stating how the teaching profession is increasing in importance and becoming more widely recognized and respected.

A photograph of the convention was taken during the short recess.

Citizenship

A paper was composed and presented by H. P. Thomson, Blairmore, on "Citizenship in Grades 6 and 7," in which he discussed the value of the new program of studies, with regard to citizenship.

The convention next repaired to the Cosmopolitan hotel where a banquet dinner was served.

On resuming the session a discussion took place on the paper, "Citizenship," led by Mr. Eric Tucker, Pincher Creek; Miss Lellon, Hillcrest, and Mr. Morgan.

Organization for 1925 was effected, and it was decided to continue conventions for all towns from Macleod to Coleman.

Convention Committee

The new conventions committee are as follows:

President, Mr. Asselstine, Bellevue; vice-president, Mr. Conway, Blairmore; secretary, Miss Lellon, Hillcrest; committee, Mr. Moore and Mr. McCachern, Coleman; Mr. Tonks, Hillcrest; Mr. Tucker, Pincher Creek; Miss Blackburn, Brocker.

A demonstration of rhythmic writing was held at the schoolhouse, led by Miss M. Bull of Pincher Creek. This proved to be most interesting.

The Morris Dance was demonstrated at the opera house, in which a number of girls took part, and led by Miss O. Hulme, Bellevue.

In the evening a grand dance took place in the opera house. The hall was beautifully decorated, and splendid music was furnished by Royle's orchestra. Delicious refreshments were served during the evening.

LAWYERS VS. THE LAW

Clarence Darrow, lawyer, whose high-priced eloquence snatched the killers Leopold and Loeb out of the hangman's clutches, declared in New York, Sunday, that "every man awaiting death in Sing Sing is there because he was without a good lawyer."

If Darrow's statement is true, the United States has an even more tremendous judicial problem than anyone has dreamed. Because his declaration simply means this, that it is within the power of "good" lawyers to contravert the laws of the country, not a quarter of the time, nor half the time, but all the time.

In short, "good" lawyers, he admits, are able to defeat justice in 100 per cent of the cases they touch.

It is common knowledge that the American judiciary has become ineffective. Darrow's claim infers that the American judiciary has ceased to function altogether.

It is the deepest and most serious problem in the republic today.

You can tell China is a republic. Three great leaders are trying to save her.

OUR DEBT TO THE PAST

The past 35 years have witnessed so many startling inventions and scientific discoveries that it is small wonder if we should feel proud of the achievements made by our own age, and indulge, perhaps, in a little pity and contempt for the benighted people of less fortunate times. Some thoughtful observers of life have questioned if the race is morally or intellectually fit to stand the effects of the rapid additions that are being made to the stock of scientific knowledge, and its application to the everyday life of the plain people.

We have suddenly come into great wealth, and have not yet grown accustomed to the novelty of it all. There are many heroes of discovery of whom the world has no record, and when we are inclined to boast of our own possessions it might be the decent act to give these unknown men a passing thought.

The first man who put a bit in the mouth of a horse, and thus gained control of such an indispensable animal to mankind, revolutionized the life of his times.

The first man who used the cross-sections of trees for wheels, and applied them to ease his labor, revolutionized the transportation problem of his age to as great a degree relatively as did the railway a century ago. But we owe more to that first man into whose mind their came the glimmering dawn of the belief that beyond his visible world with its ordered seasons and multiple forms of life and energy there existed some unknown and mysterious power which was above and beyond his reason.

If the evolution of scientific investigation could be traced back to the obscure past, it would be found to have its origin in the recognition made by primitive man of the existence of forces outside himself. The most complicated research work of today is based on this simple belief.

STANDARDS OF CULTURE

How many people in this work-a-day world, except those engaged in literary pursuits, can spare five hours each day for reading? Yet Dr. Henry Van Dyke thinks that culture depends on the adoption of such a rule. If this be true, there are few cultured persons on this continent, humiliating as the admission may be; many will be called by their inclinations and desires, but few will be chosen to reach the goal of their high ambition.

It is impossible to set up an arbitrary standard of culture; there are as many degrees of culture as there are different temperaments with varied intellectual powers. In the cultivation of the liberal arts it is possible that the pursuit may lead to such a degree of refinement that the result will be a sublimated product devoid of malice, and such a culture would be a poor exchange for the rugged qualities of character which experience has proven to be necessary to success in life.

Self-interest is the vital impulse that determines our progress, material or intellectual, and if self-interest is sufficiently strong it would be hard to fix the limit of accomplishment.

In any event, however, Dr. Van Dyke's five hours a day reading would need to be supplemented by as many hours devoted to reflection and digestion, that is, if mental stultification would be avoided.

One hour a day rightly used would soon lead us to undreamed-of regions of intellectual pleasure, and provide an ever-broadening view of life.

MUSTAFA KEMAL AND THE KORAN

In defiance of the Koran, which forbids the making of any image of man or beast, enthusiastic Turks will provide money to build a 30-foot statue of Mustafa Kemal.

The prohibition against the making of "graven images" which occurs in the Koran was set down by Mohammed and Abu Bekr because they reasoned that the ordinary individual would have trouble keeping his mind on the worship of an invisible God with all sorts of visible heroes scattered around to worship.

And, happily or unhappily, the result of that reasoning has been to implant in the minds and hearts of true Moslems a fiercer and more intense devotion to their God than that which characterizes devotees of any other religion.

That new statue, weakening the stern Moslem belief, and giving Moslems something else to think about besides the beautiful hours of Paradise that fall to their lot, provided they kill enough Christians.

Progressive movements have nothing in common with the reactionary element except an appetite.

You can say one thing for a toy dog. He never leads a dog's life.

Famous last words: "Well, if he won't dim his, I won't dim mine."

ALL SEAS

There were whimsical turns of the waters.

There were rhythmical talks of the sea.

There were gathered the darkest eyed daughters

Of men, by the deep Galilee.

A blowing full sail, and a parting From multitudes, living in him, A trembling of lips, and tears starting From eyes that looked downward and dim.

A mantle of night and a marching Of storms, and a sounding of seas, Of furrows of foam and of arching Black billows; a bending of knees;

The rising of Christ—an entreating— Hands reach'd to the seas as He saith, "Have Faith!" And all seas are repeating, "Have Faith! Have Faith! Have Faith!"

CULLING THE POULTRY FLOCK

A Canadian Egg-laying Contest Hen---Record 281 Eggs in One Year

A flock of fowls, where intelligent-ly managed, is often a good side line on a prairie farm as it means cash receipts the year round. Proper housing, feeding and general care, the weeding out of producers, and the selection and use of males from families having good egg-laying records, are the principles underlying success.

The hen that does not lay sufficient eggs to give a profit over the cost of feed has no more right to a place on the farm than has the "boarder" cow. In the fall of the year the spring pullets should be carefully selected, and only those retained which give evidence of egg-producing capabilities. A hen will lay more eggs during the first laying year than later, and for this reason it is on the young flock that reliance must be placed for egg-production during the coming winter and the ensuing summer.

At a number of the Dominion Ex-perimental Farms careful compar-isons have been made between hens and pullets as egg producers, and the evidence is strikingly in favour of the latter. In one instance the hens gave a monthly average of 7.41 eggs compared with 16.4 per bird for the pullets, although both lots were equal in breeding and received similar treatment.

Along with the unpromising pullets it is a good practice to discard most of the hens that are entering on their second winter, retaining only a few of the best layers for breeding purposes in the spring.

The use of the trap nest is a sure means of following the laying habits of a hen throughout the season, but this form of nest requires too much attention for the average farm, and a readier method is necessary. A good guide will be found in the fact that laying hens give unmistakable evidence of egg production in the bleached out appearance of the legs and beak, as well as in their general alertness and activity. Consequently, it is safe to discard all hens that have retained the yellow color in the legs, feet and beak throughout the season. By selecting the flock early in the fall there will be no difficulty in distinguishing hens from pullets, but in a few months from now they are not so easily told apart.

For winter-egg-production, which is the most profitable, early hatched pullets and correct methods of feed-ing are essential. These methods, and the proper type of house to use, have been ascertained by careful ex-periment, and the facts published in bulletin form by the Dominion De-partment of Agriculture, Ottawa, to serve as a guide to those who propose to engage in poultry keeping. A re-quest to the Publications Branch of that Department will procure a copy.

Some New Ideas

Here are some interesting new ideas taken from "Fashions of the Hour" which, by the way, is just ten years old this month. It is an unusual publication issued by a Chicago emporium six times a year, and to be had for the asking.

A Japanese bronze holder has been made for the newspaper on the break-fast-table a convenience, and decorative.

To be fashionable now, umbrellas are short, usually gay colored, with straight amber handles—a "rain or shine" tag inside.

Batik art work has been applied to so many things that it is no sur-pri- to find it now on a new puff-and-powder.

Something new in rag dolls: Sally-with-the-henna-wool-wig! She has a personality as gay as her hair, and comes stamped on muslin, in an en-velope, ready to cut out and sew to-gether.

Suede gauntlet gloves are the cor-rect thing with the street costume, the turnover cuff being embroidered. They come in brown, beaver, mode and gray.

An oval drinking glass which is easy to carry or pack, is engraved with stripes which prevent its slip-ping even in a child's wet hand. It is comparatively inexpensive, too. A nice thing for a Christmas gift for one who travels much.

A little sewing set for the hand bag, that takes up no more space than a lipstick, is a tiny silver case with a bobbin of thread, needles, and thimble.

For rainy weather the smartest coat is the yellow slicker, which comes with patch pockets and a blue corduroy lining to the collar. A most practical garment.

Dickens and Thackeray Tea

Someone has suggested as a new entertainment idea that a "Dickens and Thackeray Tea" be given, with pickles, cold meat, and pies as the refreshments. I do not know what the dietitians would say to the com-bination, but old Dr. Johnson confessed himself "a hardened and shameless tea drinker whose kettle has scarcely time to cool"—where Dickens and Thackeray were said to devote them-selves to "the aroma of prot, punch and brandy." Some of October's tangy amber cider might take their place at the entertainment. Dickens and Thackeray, when they took tea, we are told, were "always surround-ed by pickles, cold meat, pies and other dainties."

Pickled Barberries

To pickle barberries, says a kitchen authority of 1705, "Take the largest Bunches, steep them an hour or two in warm Water and Salt, then boil up the Water with more Salt, having first taken the Barberries out; when the Liquor is cool, put in a few slices of Ginger, and a little lump of Alom, and then press the Barberries down with a stone or slate, cover them close, and keep them for your use. Thus Medlers, Services, Grapes, and such like things are pickled to keep all the year."

"Beef Pye"

From the same source we have this recipe for "Beef-Pye;" "Take the Butt of a Fat Ox, slice it thin, mince it small, and beat it in a Mortar to a Paste, then lard it very well with Lard, and season it with beaten spice, then make your Pye, and put it in with some Butter and Claret-Wine, and so bake it well, and serve it in cold with Mustard and Sugar, and garnish it with Bay-Leaves."

Taffy Apples

Here is a timely suggestion for entertainment committees that want something novel for a bazaar or social refreshment. This is Cleve Carney's recipe for Taffy Apples: Mix 5 lbs. dark brown sugar, a pint of water and 1 lb. glucose in a candy kettle and let it boil to 260 degrees F. (Cracking stage, if you haven't a thermometer). Put a wooden skewer in the core of each apple to handle it by, dip it into the taffy, and set it on a buttered pan to cool.

Business Women's Department

"It took many centuries of ham-mering before the portals of business and industry and art were thrown open wide to women," says Lillian Eichler, one of America's best author-ities on etiquette. "Now it is her duty and pride to conduct herself in such a way that there can be no re-grets and vain longings for the re-turn of the woman of yesterday. By her manner and her dress a woman determines her place, and the women

THE CRANBERRY BOG

I know a Persian carpet
That never saw a loom,
Yet for all its wonderful beauty
It could grace a palace room.

It has no clear cut pattern,
You see no set design,
Yet all its million fibres
Fall into graceful line.

It covers all the swamp lands
And many a marshy cove,
And makes a bed for the evening mist.

That through the hollows rove.

You cannot tell its color
For it changes every day,
From green in early springtime
To rich lavender in May.

And when the scrubs are reddening
And the meadows shade to brown,
It changes to a purple
That can nowhere else be found.

But its highest crown of glory
And unsurpassed I deem,
Is when busy harvest fingers
Bring out its silver sheen.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL NEWS

W. R. Morrison was a Calgary visitor on Sunday last.

Mrs. R. W. Clarke, of Calgary, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Morrison.

Miss Molly Mathews spent Thanksgiving week-end in town with Miss Lillian Becher.

Darold Davis attended the Military Ball held in Calgary on Tuesday evening last.

The Rev. W. J. Merrick was in Coleman and Blairmore last Sunday conducting services at those places.

R. Davis and R. G. McLean motored to Lethbridge on Tuesday where they attended the Military Ball held in the Masonic Hall in that city.

In the public school at Macleod on Tuesday, November 11th, at 11 o'clock a.m. the teachers and pupils in each room rose and stood in silence for two impressive minutes in remembrance of the signing of the Armistice which ended the Great War six years since. The ceremony no doubt involved also a tribute of sorrowful though proud remembrance of the thousands of patriot martyrs who gave their lives toward the winning of the world's safety. After the two minutes' period of silence, and while the staff and scholars still stood at attention, Miss Laycock (at the piano in the main corridor) played "God Save the King"—a highly appropriate

MILITARY BALL WAS BIG SUCCESS

The Military Armistice Anniversary Ball held at the Silver Grill Hall on Monday evening was the most successful dance of the season, and the accommodation was stretched to full capacity. The hall was beautifully decorated, and Whittaker's Orchestra from Lethbridge supplied the latest up-to-date dance music. At 12 o'clock a buffet luncheon was served, after which dancing was resumed until 2.30 a.m. Permission had been obtained from the Military Officer commanding Military District No. 13 for all soldiers and ex-soldiers to wear uniforms, and all the returned men who had uniforms donned them for this occasion. The dance was given under the auspices of the local branch of the G. W. V. A. and the refreshments were donated by the ladies of Macleod and district. The ball was a success from every standpoint, and all who attended voted it as one of the best held in Macleod for many a long day. The uniforms of the veterans of different Forces, brushed with buttons polished for the occasion, together with the lovely gowns and costumes of the ladies, and the beautiful decorations of the hall, formed a picture that was well worth seeing, and hard to forget.

GOLDEN MOONRISE

When your eyes gaze seaward
Piercing through the dim
Slow descending nightfall,
On the outer rim

Where the deep blue silence
Touches sky and sea,
Hast thou seen the golden
Moon, rise silently?

Seen the great battalions
Of the stars grow pale—
Melting in the magic
Of her silver veil?

I have seen the wonder,
I have felt the balm
Of the golden moonrise
Turn to silver calm.
William Stanley Braithwaite, in "The House of Falling Leaves."

conclusion of a most impressive ceremony.

Rev. S. H. Middleton, of St. Paul's Mission, was a Calgary visitor during this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young were Lethbridge visitors on Tuesday of this week, visiting their son Wilson, who is in the hospital in that city.

The services at Christ Church Macleod, on Sunday, were in charge of the Ven. Archdeacon Hayes, who delivered forceful and illuminating addresses dealing especially with the organization and work of the Church.

The making of ice for skating in the rink is now occupying those who have the rink in charge and with the continued cold weather it will be ready for the skaters in a short time. The curlers are preparing for their winter's sport and will no doubt be sweeping at an early date. Skating on the river and ponds gives much pleasure to the boys and girls as they skate on the first ice that is formed during the season. Those who have their sleighs are busy sliding down the hills, making use of the snow that today promises to remain for a few days at least.

W. J. REID LEAVES FOR CALGARY

Wednesday evening, November 5, will not be forgotten by the residents in the Hazelmere district, as they all gathered in the home of W. J. Reid, one of the first farmer residents in that district, and one who has been a helper in everything that pertains to the advancement of the district. He has been one who has farmed his land, raised his stock and above all his family are all workers with him. Their home has been one that was open to any who needed a meal or other help. This occasion was to bid them Godspeed to their new life in Calgary where they will make their home. Everyone came with a basket and a real old fashioned evening was spent in games, songs, music and dancing which occupied the evening; and part of the night, when they all sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and parted. Mrs. Reid and children go to Calgary this week while Mr. Reid will follow later. Mr. Reid has not sold his farm but leased it to farmers from Mexico.
